Dear Hiring Team,

RE: COVER LETTER (Mercy Kangwato Muga)

I am excited to apply for the Marketing and Communication Manager (East Africa) role with you. With a professional background in Sales, Marketing, HR & Operations, combined with hands-on experience in digital content creation, community engagement, and event coordination, I bring a unique blend of strategy, creativity, and people-centered execution that aligns strongly with your mission.

Over the years, I have led and supported digital visibility initiatives, designed engaging visual content using Canva, and coordinated impactful community programs through my work with nonprofit and youth empowerment initiatives. As a co-founder and program lead within a mentorship organization, I regularly manage social media storytelling, outreach campaigns, and workshop logistics; from concept development to on-site coordination and follow-up engagement. These experiences have strengthened my ability to create meaningful digital experiences while ensuring events run smoothly and professionally.

My approach to marketing goes beyond visibility; I aim to build authentic engagement that translates into participation, trust, and long-term impact. I am confident in coordinating communication with participants, and maintaining an organized workflow that supports both the digital and in-person aspects of programs.

Beyond technical skills, I bring strong communication, creativity, and a collaborative spirit. I thrive in environments where storytelling, organization, and community-building intersect and I would be honored to contribute these strengths to your initiatives.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to contribute to your growing impact.

Warm regards,
Mercy Kangwato Muga
